in to Quiz Army on Files

By Peter Braestrup Washington Post Staff Writer

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-N.C.) to "tell us what they have in privacy. their computers" concerning

- Testifying last week, Assistant Secretary of the Army Robert Froehlke told Ervin's

However, as Army officials main at Ft. Holabird, Md. myself included, have long op-Ervin said yesterday wanted more details on what our activities are being moni-information is in those dos-tored." siers and what the Army is doing with it.

would be sought not only from Accounting Office, plus judi- ers' licenses for all causes.

Justice Department, whose sional legislation might pro- is used to prevent convicted cial controls and new congres- vide safeguards against bureasaid yesterday he plans to vide safeguards against cratic invasion of privacy. summon new Army witnesses bureaucratic invasion of political activities and per-sonal habits of American citi-zens. tion, said subcommittee staff of other political figures, director Laurence M. Baskir, turned up in dossiers kept "We don't yet have a very during the Army's 1967-70

Testifying yesterday, mittee about new Pentagon restrictions on military spying upon civilians. He suggested that this job be given entirely to the FBI. rored Ervin's concern:
"I doubt that anyone

then noted, some eight million aware of the full extent of the ... which only George Orwell dossiers (mostly involving se-surveillance and information and we in our nightmares curity checks on servicemen collection activities that go and defense constructors) re-on," he said. "Many people, he erated on the assumption that

Wiesner suggested that a oing with, it. watchdog agency, possibly a state- provided records about Aides said fresh details division of Congress' General revocations of individual driv-

Also calling for safeguards was Sen. Adlai Stevenson 3d After 13 months' investiga- (D-III.) whose name, with those "We don't yet have a very during the Army's 1967.70 clear idea of what we don't anti-riot surveillance effort uncovered last December by the Ervin panel.

with spying and data banks could have conceived a generation ago."

Another Ervin witness, Secretary of Transportation John Volpe, promised controls over the computerized National Driver Register, which stores

the Army but also from the cial controls and newcongres. The information, Volpe said, "killer drivers" from getting new licenses in other states, their driver records available to anyone, including insurance companies and employers, for a fee.